

Press Release

CMT Association is delighted to welcome XIM University to its Academic Partner Program on the 11th of April 2022.

Selection for the CMT Association's Academic Partner Program signifies a strong commitment to students' career readiness and applied learning. Institutions in the Academic Partner Program demonstrate academic rigor in financial courses ranging from quantitative methodologies to behavioral finance, as well as portfolio management and other key aspects of technical analysis.

With this partnership, the two institutions illustrate an innovative solution to the growing demand for student education and career preparedness, while advocating for the advancement of technical analysis in India. Technical analysis, which is a crucial part of investment and trading decisions, has evolved over hundreds of years. While modern technical analysis retains its roots in classical observations of market behavior, it extends beyond pattern recognition to employ groundbreaking quantitative methodologies and rules-based trading-system design and testing.

Joel Pannikot, Head: Asia Pacific says, "I have had the pleasure of working with XIM University not only in my current role with CMT Association but also in my previous avatar at Bloomberg. I have known them to be an institution committed to helping their students build a strong launchpad for careers in the financial services industry. Through their participation in our Academic Partner Program, I am confident that they will enhance this commitment and help their students hone their skills relevant to front-office, alpha-capture roles. The discipline of Technical Analysis is relevant to all investment and strategic decision-making roles that face the markets, as well as those that face customers who invest in the markets. Having cleared the CMT exams will enhance the placement prospects of students for these roles. Further, we look forward to faculty members conducting cutting-edge research in the field as well"

To quote John Lancaster Spalding, "The aim of education is to strengthen and multiply the powers and activities of the mind rather than to increase its possessions."

CMT Association as a premier institution provides financial courses to empower students in the arena of financial knowledge and prepare them for fruitful careers in the financial and investment industry. XIM University continuously strives to provide an academically enriching environment for its graduates to excel in an ever-changing knowledge economy. With this association, I hope students will learn to excel in becoming standout committed professionals. This partnership between the two institutions will lead to innovative practice and allow the students to shine in the academic area of finance.

About Society of Jesus:

Society of Jesus also known as Jesuits, is a group of Roman Catholic order of priests and brothers founded half a millennium ago by the soldier-turned-mystic Ignatius Loyola. During the 1530s, Ignatius of Loyola gathered up a small band of fellow students at the University of Paris. They called themselves “amigos in el Senor,” Friends in the Lord. The companions took vows of poverty and pledged to stay together and keep serving Christ and the world, after earning their degrees. A little over a decade later, the first Jesuit school opened, in Messina, Sicily, in 1548. Today, 3,730 schools carry on this tradition all around the world, caring for 2.5 million students across the world. One distinctive aspect of Jesuit education at all levels is the emphasis on teaching “the whole person” — mind, body, and spirit.
